Foundations Get Together to Fund After-School Centers

JACKSONVILLE, FL – Southland Waste Systems (SWS) has teamed up with The Boselli Foundation to create after-school centers for children on the First Coast.

SWS plans to help fund the youth centers for the foundation for three years.

"We are very excited to team up with Southland Waste Systems and look forward to a productive relationship," said Tony Boselli, The Boselli Foundation Founder.

In addition to assisting with the funding of the centers, SWS will also be partnering with The Boselli Foundation on community events and fundraisers to benefit the foundation.

There are currently two Tony Boselli Youth Life Learning Centers opened in Jacksonville, FL:

- Simonds-Johnson Community Center and Playground, located at 3730 Moncrief Rd., opened in early 2007.
- Russell Bill Cook, Jr. Community Park located at 3300 Jones St., opened in August of 2008.

The foundation hopes the centers will create an academic after-school learning environment in the community.
